DETAILED ACTION

1. This is the initial Office action based on the 10/821,529 application filed on 04/09/2004. Claims 1-16, as originally filled, are currently pending and have been considered below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The applicant uses the phrase at least likely throughout text of the recited claims. The phrase is inconclusive because it is not stated whether the directly related condition is actually met, therefore it is vague and indefinite.
4. The term "detailed manual review" in claims 8 & 16 is a relative term which renders the claim indefinite. The term "detailed manual review" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

5. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claims lack the necessary physical articles or objects to constitute a machine or a manufacture within the meaning of 35 USC 101. They are clearly not a series of steps or acts to be a process nor are they a combination of chemical compounds to be a composition of matter. As such, they fail to fall within a statutory category. They are, at best, functional descriptive material per se.

Descriptive material can be characterized as either "functional descriptive material" or "non-functional descriptive material." Both types of "descriptive material" are non-statutory when claimed as descriptive material per se, 33 F.3d at 1360, 31 USPQ2d at 1759. When functional descriptive material is recorded on some computer-readable medium, it becomes structurally and functionally interrelated to the medium and will be statutory in most cases since use of technology permits the function of the descriptive material to be realized. Compare In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 1583-84, 32 USPQ2d 1031, 1035 (Fed. Cir. 1994)

Merely claiming non-functional descriptive material, i.e., abstract ideas, stored on a computer-readable medium, in a computer, or on an electromagnetic carrier signal, does not make it statutory. See Diehr, 450 U.S. at 185-86, 209 USPQ at 8 (noting that the claims for an algorithm in Benson were unpatentable as abstract ideas because "[t]he sole practical application of the algorithm was in connection with the programming of a general purpose computer.").

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

7. Claims 1-16 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Duvall et al. (hereinafter Duvall) U.S. Patent No.: 5,884,033.

Duvall teaches:

Claim 1: A system for reviewing a message content comprising: a storage containing at least one message for review (Figure 2 and Abstract; storage and database); a memory containing a plurality of words whose presence in a message indicates that the message is at least likely to be inappropriate (Figures 2-3 and Abstract; storage, database, list); a computer processor for comparing words in the message to be screened with words in the memory in order to identify messages which are at least likely to contain inappropriate content (Figures 1-5d and Abstract; processor); and a means for designating a message as containing or being likely to contain inappropriate content (Figures 1-5d and Abstract; filter database, compare keyword and keyword match).

Claim 2: Further comprising a means for transmitting the message to a terminal for manual review (Figures 1-3 and Abstract & Col. 4 lines 56-64; clients, user's computer, provide message to user and user's display).

Claim 3: Further comprising a web interface for receiving messages to be reviewed (Figures 1-3 and Abstract & Col. 4 lines 56-64; user's computer and web browser).

Claim 4: Further comprising a means for comparing a source IP address with a list of IP addresses from which messages containing inappropriate content have been previously received (Figures 1-3 and Abstract & Col. 4 lines 56-64; list of IP addresses and matching IP addresses).

Claim 5: Further comprising a means for comparing phrases in the message to be screened with phrases in the memory in order to identify messages which are at least likely to contain inappropriate content (Figures 2 & 4 and Abstract; comparing keywords and matching portions of messages).

Claim 6: Further comprising a means for comparing a name in the message to be screened with words in the memory in order to identify messages which are at least likely to contain inappropriate content (Figures 1-5d and Abstract & Col. 2 line 63- Col. 3 line 41; DNS, comparing keywords and objectionable material).

Claim 7: Further comprising a means for transmitting the message to a terminal for manual review (Figures 1-3 and Abstract & Col. 4 lines 56-64; clients, user's computer, provide message to user and user's display).

Claim 8: Further comprising a means for transmitting the message to a second terminal for detailed manual review (Figures 1-3 and Abstract & Col. 4 lines 56-64; clients, user's computer, provide message to user and user's display).

Claims 9-16 list all the same elements of claims 1-8, but in method form rather than system form. Therefore, the supporting rationale of the rejection to claims 1-8 applies equally as well to claims 9-16.

Examiner Note: Examiner has cited particular columns and line numbers in the references as applied to the claims above for the convenience of the applicant.
